

An aerial photograph of a modern building's courtyard. The building is a multi-story structure with a light-colored facade and numerous windows. The courtyard features a large green roof area with wooden planters and a central green space with a circular paved area, a tree, and some outdoor furniture. The overall scene is bright and sunny, suggesting a clear day.

SUSTAINABILITY AND URBAN REGENERATION

Cities are growing as population centres, by 2050 70% of the global population will be city dwellers. As a result, the challenges facing urban planning and design are growing and urban regeneration will be a key factor in coping with this substantial population growth. The need to utilise existing urban spaces is particularly pressing.

Setting new standards in sustainable outdoor design and redevelopment, WoodBlocX has been used in BALI award winning designs, Royal Horticultural Society projects and EFIG installations. One of our most recent projects at Unite student union, London typifies our approach to urban regeneration and inner city greening.

MODULAR TIMBER SOLUTIONS

Launched in 2002 WoodBlocX is a privately owned, family business operating from a sawmill based in the Highlands of Scotland. We harvest and manufacture our timber ourselves, allowing us full quality control throughout the production process.

WoodBlocX can be used to create street furniture, raised planters and retaining walls. Each wooden block is made from the highest quality FSC accredited timber which is pressure-treated twice and pre-drilled penetrating almost 100% of the wood. All structures are guaranteed for 15 years and WoodBlocX is now widely regarded as the best timber system on the market.

STREET FURNITURE RANGE

Creating spaces for people to live and interact in outside is a key aspect of many landscaping projects. The integration of street furniture is an ideal way to do this. It can give an area focus and a purpose, along with extending into spaces that could be at risk of abandonment.

With our own workshop within the larger sawmill, we have been able to continually develop our offering and refine our street furniture. Small details, like the end caps and buffer rings between the bench slats have all been borne out of the notion that we can always improve. There is no space to stand still in this industry.
